mercial lamps were out for an hour or more. The hotels and merchants were seeking the office of the company by telephone and messenger.

The boys at the plant were somewhat rattled. The big 120 horse power engine which had been relied upon to furnish the power to run the arc lights, 270 in all, had broke down. It was traveling at the regulation speed, when all at once there was a big crash and and it looked like the world had come to an end. The cross head had give way, which resulted in injury to the engine costing at least $2,500. Fortunately no one was hurt. The first thing on the program was "A Model Sundayol," conducted by Mr. James Ailison, of Wichita. The officers and teachers were elected from the various schools present, and represented a model set of teachers.

After the model school adjourned, Mr. F. A. Woolf took the chair and introduced the Rev. William Clapper to the conventhe Rev. William Clapper to the convention, who gave a stirring talk on "The Suuday-achool; How Conducted to Reach the Best Results." After some music, which was rendered in a pleasing manner by the choir, Mr. R. C. Miller discussed the question, "How to Build Up a Sunday School, How to Break one Down," in an able and interesting manner. Mr. Miller has had a good deal of experience as a Sunday school worker, and was able to give some practical hints on how to build up a Sunday school, and he thought that the less said about the other part of the question the better. After others had taken part in the discussion which followed, the convention adjourned for dinner. At 2 p. m. the convention was called to order and the "Use and Abuse of Lesson Help" was treated in a very interesting way by Mr. F. A. Woolf. This is a subject which is receiving a good deal of attention from Sunday school workers, and there seems to be an opinion that the lesson helps are taking the place of the Bible in some of our Sunday schools. Mr. Woolf thought that this should be guarded against and that the helps should be used in the preparation of the lesson at home, and should never be taken to the class.

Miss Gracie Stone next rendered "Tommy Trot, or the Outcast Grandpa," in a very pleasing manner.
